WHAT?

The implementation of human rights is an important milestone on the way to a more solidary, more diverse and more tolerant (global) society. In addition to guaranteeing human rights by incorporating them into national legislation, the younger generation must be educated about human rights and their importance in our everyday lives. The European Youth Educational Center Magdeburg (EJBM) has made it their task to inform their participant groups about Human Rights and to offer a wide range of activities focussed on the topic.

With our training course we want to offer the participants a general introduction into human rights and human rights education as well as enable them to act as multipliers themselves and to lead group activities on the subject of human rights.
